FORMER ASYLUM INMATE

Again Adjudged Insane But Escapes From Officers.

Wiley Hunt, a well-to-do Warren county farmer, was adjudged of unsound mind by a jury at Bowling Green Friday and ordered sent to the asylum here. Hunt was placed on the train, but jumped from the platform of the car and ran to a livery stable, where he secured a horse and buggy and made his escape, going home.

He was in the asylum several years ago, and at that time came of his own accord, saying that he was crazy and wanted to go to the asylum. He was tried, adjudged a lunatic and given a copy of the inquest, when he came to Hopkinsville alone, presented the papers and was admitted to the institution. He was discharged later as cured and it was only recently that his dementia returned.

MRS. MARY CARNEY PIERCE,

Wife of Mr. F. M. Pierce, Passes Away.

Mrs. Mary Carney Pierce, wife of Mr. F. M. Pierce, of the Church Hill neighborhood, died Friday night of a complication of diseases, aged about 50 years. She had been sick for several months.

Deceased was a member of the Methodist church. She professed sanctification about ten years ago at a camp meeting at Kuttawa, Ky. She was a woman much esteemed by a wide circle of friends and her demise causes much sorrow.

Funeral services were held Sunday morning and the interment took place in the family burying ground.

CHANGE OF TIME

For Chicago-Florida Limited Passing Through This City.

A new time card on the Henderson division of the L. & N. went into effect yesterday. No material changes were made in any of the trains except the Chicago-Florida Limited No. 93 (formerly No. 91) south bound, now passes here at 10:50 p. m., instead of 11:58. No. 92, north bound, leaves at 6:07 instead of 5:40. These are strictly through trains.

LEAVES GRACEY LATER

And Returning, Arrives Nearly Two Hours Earlier.

A new time card went into effect on the Clarksville and Gracey division of the L. & N. yesterday. Under the new schedule the train will leave Gracey at 7:15 a. m., arriving at Clarksville at 10 o'clock. Returning the train will leave the latter place at 3 p. m., and will arrive at Gracey at 5:45. This will afford better connection with the Cadiz railroad.

Mr. Meyer Sacks, of Russia, is visiting here. Mr. S. Sacks,

HONORED OFFICIAL

Succumbs to Stroke of Paralysis Saturday Evening.

City Engineer Jno. A. Twyman Dies at His Home on Eleventh Street.

Mr. John A. Twyman, city engineer and street superintendent, died Saturday night, Jan. 3, aged 75 years. He was a son of the late K. Twyman, and had for more than 20 years been city engineer, with the exception of one term of two years.

Mr. Twyman was a widower and leaves one son, Dr. Jno. H. Twyman, of Florida. He was a member of the Baptist church and the Odd Fellows. Dr. C. H. Nash held brief funeral services Sunday afternoon and he was buried with the honors of the Odd Fellows order.

He had been in failing health for some time but paralysis was the immediate cause of his death.

SHOOTING IN TRIGG.

James Bush Probably Fatally Wounds Bill Etheridge.

James Bush shot and probably fatally wounded Bill Etheridge near Trigg Furnace, Friday, says a special to the Cincinnati Enquirer. Mrs. Bush had gone to the stable after some eggs when Etheridge, who was boarding there, made an assault upon her, it is alleged. She screamed and Mr. Bush came to her assistance. As Etheridge was fleeing he shot him. The entire load took effect in his neck. Bush came to Cadiz and surrendered.

STILL AT LARGE

Is Slayer of Colored Man of This County.

Garth Tompkins, the negro who killed Tim Brame, of near Beverly, this county, at Madisonville Christmas eve night, made his escape and at last accounts was still at large. The Hustler says County Judge Givens has written the Governor asking that a reward be offered for his apprehension as the murder was a cold blooded one, according to facts ascertained.

BAMBERGER BACK

With That Carload of Chicago Bargains.

Mr. W. L. Bamberger returned last week from Chicago, where he went to attend big clearance sales, and has inaugurated the promised special sale for Jan. 8, with a great stock of goods bought for the Moay-on Co. at wonderfully low prices. It will continue for 30 days and the line of bargains are eye-openers to the public, especially in ladies' dress goods of all kinds.

Best Liniment on Earth.

Henry D. Baldwin, Supt. City Water Works, Shullsburg, Wis., writes: "I have tried many kinds of liniment, but have never received much benefit until I used Ballard's Snow Liniment for rheumatism and pain. I think it the best liniment on earth." 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottle at R. C. Hardwick's.

Sold for Division.

The Woolridge & Chappell warehouse was sold for division yesterday. Mr. W. T. Cooper was the purchaser. The price was $3,625. R. M. Woolridge & Co., will continue to occupy the building.

Several shorthorn and Jersey milk cows, with young calves, will be sold at the Claggett sale Thursday Jan. 8, five miles west of Hopkinsville, on Canton pike.

Mrs. W. B. Smith and her sister, Miss Addie May Price and Mrs. John Wesley Longwell, all of Atlanta, Ga., who spent the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Price, returned home Sunday.

AS THOU ART.

Thou sayest thou art not so fair as the dawn stars are. Thy cheeks are faded and thy hair is gray, and dim and old. It is not so. O bid depart. Such dreariness look in the mirror of my heart And let it picture thee:

Not with the brilliancy of those that show like youth's own hair. There is a beauty in repose—That beauty those have none. Not in the joys of early years. Untold and sorrow-true. God grant mine eyes may rest upon. With age, tranquility.

As some pure lily set apart From other flowers' race. My love shall hold thee as thou art—More cherished than they. And when life's faded course is run And darkness draweth nigh. God grant mine eyes may rest upon. Thy dear me as I die!—Arthur Clements, in Overland Monthly.

A CONQUEST.

After the usual round of flirtations and conquests at the European watering places, the little Baron Athendore de Condillac, "the Irresistible," as they call him at the club, foiled in all his moves by a bewitching Russian princess, and anticipating an enormous checkmate, took himself off to pastures new.

He is between 28 and 30 years old, with a well-curved blonde mustache, rather thin hair, correctly dressed; not solidly educated, but proficient in society's lingo; not intelligent, but conceited; well versed in the sciences of polo, lawn tennis and pigeon shooting, endowed with a true talent for leading the cootillon, and possessed of a comfortable fortune, not too much incubated.

Such is Baron Athendore de Condillac, one of the most exquisite young men of the present generation.

As I said before, this interesting gentleman betook himself to pastures new—to wit, Newport, towards the end of the season.

Arrived at eight in the morning, by evening he was madly in love—love at first sight. In the gloaming he had met a young woman, a sylph, a dream. Dressed in a costume of neutral tint of light material, she walked, or rather glided, gracefully past him, like an apparition. She was tall, slender, lithe, with adorable eyes. Athendore bowed to her, and she looked at him in a rather astonished way, but returned his salutation by an imperceptible motion of the head. This was not much, but sufficient to encourage the baron.

His heart was terribly inflammable. The least spark will explode a keg of powder; the least contact, a word, a glance, sufficed to put him beside himself. He was in love for life; never varying in the ardor of his sentiments, but varying often in their object. The last woman he met was the one he thought would possess his heart forever, and he swore, in good faith, mentally to her an eternal love which lasted at most for a fortnight.

The first thing he did, after meeting this delicious vision, was to retrace his steps and follow her at a distance; then, seeing her enter one of the finest hotels, he decided at once to find her name and station in life.

"Who is this divine creature?" thought he. "A young girl? Married? Perdition! Maybe a widow? Her garments are half-mourning. Why should I hesitate to lay my fortune, my name, my life, everything at her feet? I will marry her."

Having taken this resolution, whose honesty was surely most commendable, he started to find the name of the one he destined—for the present—to make his life's partner.

On the very steps of the Casino he ran across Yvonne de Cheux, a member of his club, who was in quest of a rich American heiress to regild his escutcheon. Athendore questioned him.

"Do I know her? Charming, delicious, adorable! I compliment you, my dear baron, on your good taste."

"But her name?"

"Rob-Robertson—Robin—Robinson. That is all I know. She lives quite secluded; is never seen at the hops, or anywhere else. She is a widow, they say."

"A difficult conquest, old fellow. I thought of it myself, but it would necessitate too much exertion, so I gave it up. You may be more courageous than myself."

"Robinson—Robertson," cogitated the baron. "I forget which; but there is the place!"—and the impetuous Athendore rushed at once to the hotel, where he had seen the beautiful unknown enter a few minutes ago, and inquired whether Mrs. Robertson lived here.

"Mrs. Robertson?" repeated the clerk. "Yes, sir; No. 10, second floor; she just came in. Shall I inform her of your calling?"

"Inform her, indeed!" thought the baron. "Why should I endanger my cause by undue precipitation?"

"No, thank you," he said, aloud; "being acquainted with a Mrs. Robertson I wanted to know if she is the one who lives here. Her first name—do you know it?"

"Yes, sir; it is not a common name—Arthemise."

The baron went immediately to his room. Such progress in less than half an hour! He now knew her name and her residence.

He possessed a small portfolio in which an impetuous young artist had compiled expressly for him in several languages a series of 34 love letters, running through the whole gamut, from the first declaration, discreet and respectful, to the most impetuous outbursts of passion. A few words could always change here and there, according to the special circumstances of the case, and the series, progressing adroitly, could pass for the "Perfect Lover's Manual." Athendore copied No. 1 in his first handwriting:

"Madam: To see you is to love you. I have seen you and I love you."

More followed in the same vein, and then the baron dispatched the letter at once to Mrs. A. Robertson.

The next day he met again in the gloaming the delicious apparition, but also as at the first time; she passed so indifferently, so absent-mindedly that she hardly returned his polite bow.

"I shall send No. 4 without delay; the first ones are not pressing enough," thought the baron; and the next minute began: "Adorable angel! My life's idol! Divine Artemise!" etc.

Then he repaired to the Casino and spent a mournful evening.

Man is naturally so conceited that even if his heart is absorbed by the most ardent love he remarks, nevertheless, the admiration he excites on the way and calls it as his due. It was anyhow the case with Athendore, who was never astonished or vexed at being noticed by women.

By your last letter, the one of yesterday, I see you want to marry my wife. We can arrange everything satisfactory to all of us by going to Chicago and getting a divorce. No publicity; I assume the costs. I cannot pay too much for the service you render me. I pass Artemise over to you and we remain good friends. This is my proposition. What do you think of it?"

"Sir," stammered the baron, after a pause, "I shall consider your proposition, and shall have the honor to see you again in two days. Till then, no word to Mrs. Robertson."

The worthy man took his leave well pleased.

Athenore sank into the nearest chair. "What a revelation! He has kissed the ribbon that encircled her neck."

Furious at this thought, he opened the casket, snatched out ribbons, belts, fans, handkerchiefs and souvenirs, tore them to shreds, stamped upon them and thrust them in the waste basket.

Having disposed of the last vestiges of his overwhelming conquest, not with flying colors, but silently, he left that very evening for New York and sailed from there to Japan, declaring a resolution nevermore to form his love to any woman by letter.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A VISITOR'S DISCOVERY.

Tame Wildcat and a Wild Tame Cat Are Not Equally Gentle.

One of the principal attractions of a show once given by the Cat club in Chicago, says the Youth's Companion, was the "tame wildcat." The animal had been caught in the forests of Minnesota or Wisconsin when a little kitten, and having fallen into good hands, had grown up to be a gentle, affectionate creature, fond of being petted and giving no evidence of its untamed wildness except in its pointed ears and its size, which was about that of four ordinary cats.

An interested visitor, after having reached a finger through the wires of the wildcat's cage and stroked the animal's forehead, strolled along and presently repeated the performance at the cage of a particularly handsome Angora, receiving a savage scratch at he did so.

"Wow! ow!" he exclaimed, wrapping his handkerchief hastily around the torn finger. "A tame wildcat isn't half as dangerous as a wild tame cat."

May Expect to Live Long.

A doctor says that persons who attain their thirtieth year without feeling from any serious illness are likely to live till they are at least 73 years of age.

THAT RED STAIN

On the handkerchief sends a chill to the heart of the woman who had kept on thinking—"the cough will get better after a while." Now she knows the fight for life is on and looks eagerly around for medical aid.

There is one medicine whose marvelous record for cures commends it at once to every sufferer from lung troubles as safe and sure.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures obstinate, deep seated coughs, bronchitis, weak and bleeding lungs, emaciation and diseases generally, which, if neglected or unsatisfactorily treated, terminate fatally in consumption.

"In the 'Lewiston Journal,' November 15th, 1901, printed in Lewiston, Maine, I find an advertisement of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mr. C. H. Brann, (provision merchant) of Bridgton, Maine, Box 314. 'I want to tell you what the 'Discovery' did for me years ago for spitting of blood. The first three bottles helped me so that I was practically cured for one year. Then I took three bottles more with the same result, and lastly I took three bottles more, making nine bottles in all. It has now been over fifteen years and I have not been troubled with spitting any more blood.'

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

MARTIAS ESCORT

Meets Jack S. Moore, of Train Robbery Fame at Fulton.

Jack S. Moore, one of the victims of the Louisville & Nashville railroad train robbery near South Louisville Monday, arrived in Fulton last night. He had notified friends by telegraph that he would be here in the interest of his employers, the Hanover Life Insurance company and they fixed up a little surprise for him.

At the instance of C. F. Dabke and Clint Foster a guard was armed and organized and marched to the depot to be ready to meet him and escort the broken-hearted "Jack" to Fulton hastily.

The plans of the guard were carried out without a hitch, and in addition to this numerous and diverse weapons of offense and defence were presented to him upon his arrival.

After he had told and retold the story until no incident had been omitted the party attended "A Poor Relation" at the Vendome, after which a delightful supper, served by Dabke, was partaken of.

Those who attended were: J. S. Moore, Jim Miller, Clint Foster, Joe Patterson and C. F. Dabke. It was a most enjoyable affair. Fulton Leader.

Old Walnut Stumps.

God walnut timber has about disappeared from this section, but on many farms there are old stumps, and the owners of the same will probably read the following with interest:

"Old walnut stumps are on a boom throughout Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania. Stumps that have remained for years and were regarded as worthless are now eagerly sought after a price that seem almost fabulous. The uglier, knottier and more unsightly the stump the more it will bring. The stump of a walnut tree that was cut several years ago brought more money than the whole tree. It is stated that the stumps are made into veneering material and used in manufacture of high grade furniture."

The January number of Scribner's Magazine, which marks the beginning of its 33d volume, contains two of the notable features of the coming year. It is seldom that the opportunity is offered to present the brilliant letters of a woman who has filled the highest social and official positions at the courts of Europe. The letters of Madame Waddington, wife of the eminent French Ambassador, M. William Waddington, begin in this number, with entertainingly witty accounts of the English court in the Eighties. Madame Waddington's observations have the greater value to American readers because she is an American, the daughter of a President of Columbia College and the granddaughter of Rufus King, who was American Minister to England. These letters were written to her relatives in this country at the very time in which the events described were fresh in her memory. They are therefore spontaneously natural, and unconventionally bright. The illustrations are from portraits and other pictures in Madame Waddington's own collection.

Turkeys In Turkey.

A writer in Our Dumb Animals says: An observation made by the writer of "Pages from a Private Diary" may interest your readers. He says: "When he was in Turkey he saw a man feeding his turkeys and a flock of wild turkeys came down to feed with them. The man drove them into a shed. 'What shall you do with them?' asked my friend, 'kill them?' 'Kill them?' said the man; 'they are my guests. In the morning I shall feed them and let them go.' It is well to know that we can learn lessons in humanity even from 'The Turk.'"

REBINDING OLD BOOKS.

A Recent Copyright Decision Allows a Curious Custom.

A curious decision as to the right to rebind books, which also involves the question of copyright, was recently given by the United States circuit court of appeals, says the Scientific American. The court announced that to trim old books, to cut off the edges of the leaves and so rebind them is no invasion of the rights of the person holding the copyright of the books. The court in its ruling put in a proviso that a book so re-bound, recovered and offered for sale should have prominently displayed and stamped upon its cover notice that the book was a second-hand copy. The American Book company have complained that the defendants were selling old school books on which they owned the copyright. They were then revamped and sold. The court in its decision says: "We think that, so far as respects the copyright laws of the United States, no legal right of the appellee was invaded by so doing. What was done was merely the restoration of the books to their original condition when sold by the appellee, or so nearly as could be done."

National Magazine.

Edward Markham and Admiral Schley lead the list of contributors to the January National Magazine. The Admiral writes of The Spanish Christmas at Sea. Fine full page portraits of Congressman Cannon, the next Speaker, and of Senators Spooner, Clapp, Heitfield and Hawley are among the illustrations of Joe Mitchell Chappell's Affairs at Washington. S. Glen Andrus tells how Americans are putting hundreds of millions into Mexican agriculture and how hundreds of thousands of Americans can acquire homes there. Capt. Arthur McGraw presents the most striking and original plan for reaching the North Pole that has ever been published. George E. Hunt tells the story of Indianapolis, America's largest inland city. Dr. A. E. Winship exploits the wonderful educational philanthropy of Senator Stout at Menomonee, Wisconsin. Ralph Berggren discusses the Gabriele D'Annunzio. Frank Putnam, in Note and Comment, touches on labor problems, new books, the new status of the negro South, and the Venezuelan affair. C. A. Lubnow, writing from Berlin, surveys The Month in Europe. Robert B. Armistead, secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury, contributes a quickening discussion of the Shrinking of the Earth through the agencies of commerce and invention. Carrie Hunt Latta, Sophie Hammond, James Sall Naylor, Leavenworth Macnab and Lytle O. Harris are the story tellers. The National's stories are always excellent. The poems are by Frederick Lawrence Knowles, Sam Walter Foss, Mary N. Hobart and Edward L. Peterson. The National's poetry is quoted everywhere.

COLD WINTER WEATHER

AGGRAVATES CATARRH.

Fortify the System With Peruna and No One Need Fear Coughs, Colds, or Catarrh.

Winter is here. The nights are long and cold. The days are short and changeable in temperature. Cold creeps in at every crevice and daunts occur in spite of the utmost vigilance. Very few remain safe from climatic diseases. Colds soon develop into chronic catarrh. A cough rapidly becomes consumption. La grippe undermines the system dangerously. Influenza leaves injuries to head and throat hard to remove. All these things people strive in vain to guard themselves against. How best can they do it?

First, get some Peruna. Second, send to the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio, for a free copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on the climatic diseases of winter. This book in plain and direct language tells exactly what to do in all emergencies and emergencies resulting from wintry weather. If any point is doubtful, if the book does not explain fully, a letter to Dr. Hartman will receive a prompt answer free of charge.

What untold misery this would save if everyone would heed this advice. Peruna cures a cold quicker than any medicine in the world. Peruna is a sure cough cure. Peruna is the best if not the only internal remedy for catarrh yet devised. Peruna cures la grippe. A book of testimonials sent free.

THE FOLKS AT HOME.

The folks at home believe in me. The faithful folks at home. They boast of what I'm going to do. To other folks at home. And father says to Elsie Cy. That he would like to be her. I'll be a great man by and by. And folks shall see it yet.

He knows full well that I'll not shame The honest folks at home. Nor will I forget the good old name. Of all our folks at home. For father says he's understood. And said so at the home. When he went down to sell some wood. That new days boys need more.

My father's grand old march away. Off all his folks at home. And footed forty miles sea day. With other folks at home. Then in the fight on Bunker Hill. Fought bravely, it is said. And at the close, lay there still. Face to the front, stone dead.

God be my help! I'll not forget The loving folks at home. Nor cause them shame nor keen regret. The dear old folks at home. God grant me strength, and wit, and will. To do the best I can. As grand old did at Bunker Hill. To live and die a man. —Herbert C. Thorndike, in Boston Transcript.

From a Dog's Notebook

By M. D'ARCY WATSON.

I HEAR it is quite the custom in these days for the great and well-beloved to occasionally chronicle their lives, and as I have rather an extensive acquaintance both among people and those of my own kind, I have concluded that a brief account of myself and my doings might be gladly welcomed by the public.

My name, "The Angel Dog," was not given me, I am led to believe, in early infancy, but only added in later years by my owner, who in many respects is rather a clever woman, with much taste and discrimination on a few subjects. Alas! though, she shows weakness in some strains, such as her love for cats, fine clothing, and the attention and admiration of young men, too, that I must hate, and whenever they call I go awfully barking at them, and nipping their shoes to such an extent that I have succeeded in driving some of them away entirely. But these spots in her are fortunately redeemed by a just appreciation of my own race, whom she often classes under the general term of "Angels."

Although American born, I am of Scotch and Skye extraction, and am therefore very beautiful. This I have to be a fact, for my mistress has told me as often as a hundred times in one day. I have heard spiteful people, however, remark that my waist line is too big for my short legs, and that my tail is too abbreviated for beauty. But my eyes are unmistakably handsome, my tongue is soft and silky, of a bluish gray and my stout body is covered with blackish hair. My paws are yellow and large, and are considered by my owner as particularly attractive, for when I give her one, she overcomes me with pet names. I have rather a nice appetite, dainty, reminiscent, like all gentlemen of my breed, but I often condescend to take scraps, and when I feel badly I resort to primitive medicine such as grass and gutter water. I live in a pretty good sort of house and have two or three maids, as well as my mistress, to wait on me. The house is not much for style, I am told, but it has some good points: a number of soft chairs and sofas, with their covers much worn, which can be easily torn and scratched up when so desired. The beds, too, are squashy and available, and when I feel playful it is great fun to jump upon them and tear off the foolies that ruffles on something they call "shams." It makes the maids angry, but my mistress seems to think it a big joke, and laughs and kisses me and says: "The poor Angel Dog, did he amuse himself pulling things to pieces?"

One thing I do not think consistent, however, with my mistress's usual kind heart, for every now and then she declares that her "little boy" (another foolish name she has for me), is very dirty, and then the maid chunks me into the tub, and lathers me with soap and brushes and scrubs me until I feel like a miserable cleaner. Often she embarrasses me by having the cats around at the time, and even if they do enjoy the high sounding names of "King," "Queen," "President" and "Prince," I am sure that they are not only my inferiors in race, behavior and breeding, but in morals, for they unhesitatingly take everything they can get hold of to eat, and often, what shall I say, stay out at night with their friends, whereas I sleep the sleep of the just, and the sleep of the good, on my favorite maid, a pretty little German girl. My life is pleasant, though a simple one. I get up quite late and when I come down I run out for my morning walk; a fine nice, but common, dog, come up politely and speak to me, though my mistress mortifies me greatly by calling from her window, "Angel Dog, don't look at those low, rotten animals." I, of course, take no notice, and go off as fast as I can around the corner where a fat, fat, good-natured pug whom I rather affect. Then, after a late breakfast of griddle cakes and milk I take a long nap and every afternoon my mistress and I go out for a ramble. Now, having told thus far, I want to say what I have done recently to help her, and how I have more than repaid her for my kindness she may have bestowed upon me.

Nearly every day we would meet a a very silly little fox terrier, who was wild and playful, and although my mistress wanted to insist that I would walk by her side, and pay no attention to him, I, as usual, took my own way, and as it was useless for her to remonstrate she got in the habit of allowing the terrier, as long as she could not help it, to accompany us on our walks. The terrier, I soon observed, had not much sense and knew nothing of life, not even his age, still I saw that he was of a good family, for he wore a pretty collar, and had a clean, well-groomed appearance generally. He told me that his master was a gentleman who went to something called a "club." He said he thought that there must be good eating there, for when he came home late in the night, he was jolly and kind, yet he never offered to take him along, nor did he care to walk with him. One afternoon, however, I saw my young friend accompanied by a rather good looking man, just the style my mistress would like, for he dressed well, had a smooth face, and looked bright and silly. Now I said to myself, I will have the terrier in peace, and we can go out hunting and scratching up the flowers in the beds on the squares, unmolested, if my mistress only has her attention, for the time being, diverted from her "Angel Dog."

At first, though, our owners took no notice apparently of each other, but insisted that we should separate, and they each called us off continually, but we, of course, were deaf to their suggestions to part, and the terrier confided in me, that he too never minded, though when it meant a whipping, and as I never was even slapped, only kissed as punishment, I did not pretend to obey, and so we trotted off together. When I looked back later, sure enough, my mistress was walking by the terrier's master, and talking to him, and I knew just what she was saying without the trouble of listening. She was just telling him how valuable my mistress was (just as if he had no eyes to see for himself) and what a comfort I was, and she was asking him if he thought that his dog could possibly hurt me, as if I would allow such a thing for an instant. Then she followed up these remarks with a history of the cats. Now why she will do this, I cannot imagine. I wonder to know. He seemed amused. "How curious men are," I said to the terrier, "they laugh at whatever my mistress says, but the terrier was not analytical, and only seemed what I would have for supper when I got back, and when I told him caramels and sugar cakes he seemed scornful. Then she went on to tell the terrier's master where she lived, and who she liked, and who she disliked, and a lot of things, before he could say a word.

The next afternoon, however, as we walked in the same direction, and just at the same point, the terrier came along and whispered to me, "I have him out again. Come on, I know where there is a dead rat; we will have some sport, and they won't bother about us." The terrier showed more discrimination, I thought, for sure enough my mistress smiled amiably as the terrier's master joined her and soon they took precious little notice of us.

Time has run on. I do not know just how many afternoons we four walked together, but at last my mistress told me something she called a "secret." She says that she and I are going to live in the same house with the terrier and his master, and that he has promised to love the "angel dog" just as much as he does her. How foolish I tell me that. Of course he will and she has asked me if I minded? I said promptly, "Will the German girl go?" and she understanding my bark and looks, declared that she would surely take her little maid with her. So the question is settled, for the terrier and I are to always play together. He says, too, that his master declares that he and I made the "match," whatever that may mean. Perhaps some of my readers may know.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

"I suppose you expect that your new play will be a great hit," said the friend.
"I do," answered the manager; "I got several disinterested people to look at it before I accepted it. Two of them said it was so improper that they refused to read it through."—Washington Star.

Bank of Lafayette.

The statement of the Bank of Lafayette at the close of business Dec. 31, 1902, appears in this issue and a perusal of same is invited. The figures show this financial institution to be in a healthy condition and enjoying a most liberal patronage. That the people of that town and of the country around appreciate a bank in their midst is fully demonstrated by the amount of business transacted with the concern.

MAYOR HEAD

Of Nashville to Go After Telephone Monopoly.

The great monopoly, the Cumberland Telephone company, has a firm hold on Nashville, but if Mayor Head is enabled to carry out his idea, Nashville will own a telephone system of its own, and if it proves as successful as its other public utilities, the citizens will have additional cause for congratulation. At this time it is claimed that the Cumberland charges from $2 to $7 for telephones, and that it gives unsatisfactory services. When an independent company desired a franchise, another sprang up with and behind the scheme, it was squelched, as the Cumberland was suspected to be behind the scheme, and the matter comes before the legislature next sitting. The city proposes to put in a conduit system in order to do away with overhead wires.—Exchange.

LODGE NO. 37

F. & A. Masons Hold Their Annual Election.

Local lodge No. 37 F. & A. Masons elected the following officers for the year 1903:

Geo. W. Clark, W. M.; J. Miller Clark, S. W.; Robt. Fairleigh, J. W.; J. B. Gault, Treasurer; J. C. Buckner, Secretary; N. Zimmer, Tyler; J. M. Bullard, S. D.; P. T. Robinson, I. D.

Glenn's Graphic, of Madisonville, will on January 8 begin the publication of "The Escape of Gen. Morgan and His Men From the Columbus Penitentiary." This story will be run as a serial and will continue from week to week until the whole tale is told. The article is by Capt. L. D. Hockersmith, of Madisonville.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of their work, the whole tale is told. The article is by Capt. L. D. Hockersmith, of Madisonville.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping blood, kidney-purified blood through veins and arteries. It is said to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble. If you are sick you can make no mistake by first consulting your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail, or receive a free copy, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Oldest Resident of Trigg County Is Dead.

"Old Aunt" Edie Bryant, colored, the oldest resident of Trigg county and probably the oldest resident of the state of Kentucky, died December 23 on the Wharton farm, a mile east of Cadiz, says the Cadiz Record.

"Aunt Edie" was born in Culpeper county, Virginia, May 17, 1794. She was brought to Trigg county by John J. Wharton, father of Messrs. William and George S. Wharton, deceased, in 1805, and had since made her home in the county. There was only one house then where the town of Cadiz now stands.

LOCAL BANKS.

The Four Banks of Hopkinsville in Flourishing Condition.

Attention is called to the statements of the Bank of Hopkinsville, First National Bank, Planters Bank and Trust Company and The City Bank published in the KENTUCKIAN, showing their condition at the close of business December 31, 1902. These financial concerns are conducted by business men of experience and the statements show that all of the banks are in a most flourishing condition.

Bank of Pembroke.

We publish in this impression of the KENTUCKIAN the statement of the condition of the Bank of Pembroke at the end of the year just passed. This banking concern is enjoying a prosperous business and the attention of the public is called to the figures presented in this report. The Bank of Pembroke is offered by thorough business men and the town should feel proud of such an institution.

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of salt pork," was the advice consumptive 50 years ago.

Salt pork is good for the stomach. It is behind it is that fat food the consumptive most.

Scott's Emulsion is an old method of curing the consumptive. For rough for sensitive stomachs, Scott's Emulsion is the refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat is the way, which is often the way, is half the battle. Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life in weak parts and has an action on the disease.

MAYOR HEAD

Of Nashville to Go After Telephone Monopoly.

The great monopoly, the Cumberland Telephone company, has a firm hold on Nashville, but if Mayor Head is enabled to carry out his idea, Nashville will own a telephone system of its own, and if it proves as successful as its other public utilities, the citizens will have additional cause for congratulation. At this time it is claimed that the Cumberland charges from $2 to $7 for telephones, and that it gives unsatisfactory service. When an independent company desired a franchise, another sprung up with and behind the scheme, it was squelched, as the Cumberland was suspected to be behind the scheme, and the matter comes before the legislature next sitting. The city proposes to put in a conduit system in order to do away with overhead wires.—Exchange.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble. If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Klinger's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is now realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail (see also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Klinger & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.). Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Klinger's Swamp-Root and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

Oldest Resident of Trigg County is Dead.

"Old Aunt" Edie Bryant, colored, the oldest resident of Trigg county and probably the oldest resident of the state of Kentucky, died December 23 on the Wharton farm, a mile east of Cadiz, says the Cadiz Record. "Aunt Edie" was born in Culpeper county, Virginia, May 17, 1794. She was brought to Trigg county by John J. Wharton, father of Messrs. William and George S. Wharton, deceased, in 1805, and had since made her home in the county. There was only one house then where the town of Cadiz now stands.

LOCAL BANKS.

The Four Banks of Hopkinsville in Flourishing Condition.

Attention is called to the statements of the Bank of Hopkinsville, First National Bank, Planters Bank and Trust Company and The City Bank published in the KENTUCKIAN, showing their condition at the close of business December 31, 1902. These financial concerns are conducted by business men of experience and the statements show that all of the banks are in a most flourishing condition.

Bank of Pembroke.

We publish in this impression of the KENTUCKIAN the statement of the condition of the Bank of Pembroke at the end of the year just passed. This banking concern is enjoying a prosperous business and the attention of the public is called to the figures presented in this report. The Bank of Pembroke is officered by thorough business men and the town should feel proud of such an institution.
